RESEARCH EXPERIENCE

- Masters Research, Vanderbilt University 2015
Title: Abstracting Bodies: Technology and the Im/material Divide in Tod Machover's opera Death and the Powers
A review and critique of current post-human philosophies of mind/body duality as presented in Tod Machover's opera Death and the Powers. Narrative themes, musical structures and technological systems are analyzed, and theo-ethical implications are considered.
- Graduate Research Assistant, Vanderbilt University 2015
Syriaca.org Digital Humanities Research and Development Project
Supervisor: Dr. David Michelson
- Masters Research, Belmont University 2009
Title: Emergence of the Posthuman Aesthetic in Electroacoustic Music
A development of the definition of posthuman aesthetics and its representation in electroacoustic music. Points illustrated through analysis and exegesis of works I composed during my MM studies at Belmont University and ideas of posthuman representation in the arts.
